SEVERE COLD MARS TREE CELEBRATION

Weather Man Forces Crowd To Thin Out Before Ex- ercises Close

With the mercury hovering around the ten below mark hundreds of men, women and children braved the biting cold Thursday evening to congregate at the Northwestern depot, park in participation at Rhinelander's first municipal Christmas tree celebration. That the severe weather served to mar the enjoyment of the program was indicated by the futile efforts of the throng to keep body and spirit warm. Coughing and crying of little ones lent an atmosphere of distress to the scene which was not in keeping with the holiday occasion. Many parents were obliged to take their children home before the program was half completed. This deplorable condition scored many unfavorable comments for the weather man and put a damper on the festivities.

The tree itself was a thing of splendor to say the least. Decorated with over three hundred colored incandescent electric lights it presented a scene of brilliancy and beauty never to be forgotten. The tree towered nearly fifty feet and a large electric star illuminated the top.

Despite the cold the entire program as previously arranged was carried out. The booster band filled the air with appropriate music and Company L, as the guard of honor, gave a short drill. Bugler E. K. Riek gave the assembly call at the opening of the exercises and Mayor Fred Anderle turned the switch which set the tree aglow. Judge Charles Foster Smith made a brief address of welcome. Christmas carols were sung by the children and high school glee club.

At the conclusion of the program distribution of candy was made to the little folks. As before, stated the cold forced a large number of children to leave early and consequently these failed to receive the sweets.

The municipal tree remains in the Northwestern park and is illuminated each night. To strangers coming into Rhinelander on trains it serves as a striking advertisement for the community spirit of the city. After New Year's day the tree will be removed.

WOODSMAN MEETS DEATH ON RAILS

Christmas morning the body of a woodsman, whose name is thought to have been Peter Finland, was found beside the Soo line track near the Kettner farm at Woodboro. Members of the Kettner family made the gruesome discovery. An ugly wound in the back of the head indicated that the man had probably met his death by a train. He was thought to have been intoxicated at the accident as a whiskey flask was picked up not far from the corpse.

Coroner Decanter drove to Woodboro and viewed the body but did not deem an inquest necessary.

Finland was about 30 years of age. He had no known relatives or money and the body was shipped to Wisconsin University.

CONTRACT FOR COUNTY BRIDGE

Bridge contracts amounting to over sixteen hundred dollars were awarded Tuesday evening by F. E. Parker, highway commissioner of Oneida county.

The Wausau Iron Works of Wausau, Wis., was given the contract to erect a bridge at Tripoli on county line road, said bridge to be one eye beam span, 26 feet long with concrete floor and abutments. Contract price $541.

To J. W. Kelley of Bradley was awarded the contract to build a bridge across the Little Rice at Bradley. This structure is to be one eye beam span 32 feet long with concrete abutments on piling and concrete floor. $1096 is the contract price.

MAKE SEARCH FOR ANDREW BERGH

Where is Andrew Bergh? This is the question which Katherine Bergh of 631 Grace Street, Elgin, Ill., is anxious to have solved.

It is known that in 1905 an old gentleman named Andrew Bergh and whose home was in Elgin, Ill., held a position as watchmaker with the firm of Carling & Jewett in this city. Mr. Bergh remained in Rhinelander only a short time and since leaving here Katherine Bergh and other relatives have heard nothing of him. It is presumed here that he is an uncle of Katherine Bergh.

George C. Jewell received a letter from Katherine Bergh Tuesday requesting that he seek information regarding the missing man in the hope that there may be some one in Rhinelander who can shed some light regarding him or his whereabouts.

C. A. Carling states he has heard nothing of Mr. Bergh since he left his employ in 1905.

WOLVES KILL DEER

Ex-Mayor E. W. Clark of Fond du Lac, while talking over the long distance phone with N. A. Coleman of Vilas county, was told the following experience, says the Fond du Lac Reporter:

Mr. Coleman said that while he was standing near the barn of his farm, located on the shores of Clear Water Lake, one morning last week, he heard a peculiar noise in a large tract of woods nearby.

Without stopping to secure a gun Mr. Coleman hurried to the woods and upon entering the densest part saw a large half famished wolf attacking a deer. Just as Mr. Coleman approached the animals, the wolf buried its fangs into the deer's throat and with a quick jump hurled the deer to the ground.

When Mr. Coleman was within ten feet of the animals the wolf got up and ran away, leaving the deer lying on the ground. Mr. Coleman seeing that the deer was completely exhausted decided to take it to his barn and care for it.

He took his handkerchief and tying it around the deer's front feet managed to drag it to his barn, where he has been caring for the animal for the past few days. The deer has practically recovered from the wounds inflicted by the wolf.

Miss Frances Citka of the Nelson store force has returned from a visit in Tigerton.

FIRST NEW YEAR'S BABY

For the first baby born in Rhinelander after 12 o'clock, midnight, on December 31, or to be more definite the first baby born in Rhinelander in 1915, the New North will give to the parents a present of the paper for one year, if they will report promptly the birth to the New North by telephone or otherwise.

Don't overlook this offer. It means an opportunity to receive a live, up-to-date newspaper free along with a live up-to-date baby.

OLD COUPLE DIE IN HOUSE FIRE

O. E. Laugesen and son, Chris, returned Sunday from Bear Creek, where they attended the funeral of Mrs. Laugesen's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chris. Nielsen, who lost their lives in a fire which destroyed their home near Bear Creek. The New London Press gives the following story of the terrible tragedy:

Mr. and Mrs. Chris Nielsen of the town of Deer Creek were burned to death at an early hour Wednesday morning. The news of the double tragedy was the one topic of yesterday and a shock to the entire vicinity.

Mr. and Mrs. Nielsen resided alone and nothing is known of the origin of the fire as when it was discovered by Charles Dery, a neighbor, at about one a. m., very little of the house remained standing. From the position of the few bones, it is thought that Mr. and Mrs. Nielsen tried to leave the house, but were not successful.

It is also told this morning that when the door was broken in the form of the old man could be distinguished lying on the floor, past all help. After the fire the principal remains that could be discovered were the skull of the old man and a hip bone of his wife. Both the old people were past 75 years of age.

Mr. and Mrs. Nielsen were born in Denmark and spent their early years there. Coming to this country they were one of the first settlers in the town of Deer Creek where they have since resided. They are survived by one son and two daughters. Mrs. Charles Remick of New London is a granddaughter.

Their home is about three and one half miles east of Sugar Bush and two miles southeast of Bear Creek.

STAPLETON GETS RAISE IN SALARY

Postmaster Matt Stapleton has received notification from the postoffice department that he has been granted a salary increase of $1000 per year. The increase dates from July last and means that Mr. Stapleton now receives a yearly salary of $2000 instead of $2000 as was the amount previous to July.

The news of the increase in pay is a source of gratification to Mr. Stapleton.

It is believed that the bill of Postmaster General Burleson to reduce salaries of postmasters throughout the country will not be passed by congress.

FINE LIERSCH $200

Edward N. Liersch, the Remington typewriter salesman who on December 7 was the driver of an automobile which struck and killed Mrs. Barbara Schackert in Milwaukee, was fined $200 and costs by Judge Backus in Milwaukee municipal court.

The original charge against Liersch was manslaughter but this was changed to a lesser charge of failing to stop his car and give assistance to an injured person. Liersch testified that he became crazed after his machine struck the woman and he was afraid to look around, or stop.

Henry Schackert, son of the dead woman, pleaded with the court for leniency with Liersch.

CANCELS "DAN CUPID"

"Dan Cupid" which was to have been the Christmas bill at the Grand Opera House was cancelled by Manager Zander. Mr. Zander received word from Grand Rapids that the company was nothing extra and rather than impose upon his patrons he "killed" the date.

It is Mr. Zander's rule to book only the best attractions for the Grand and a poor show cannot "get across" with him.

MANY CHILDREN NOT IN SCHOOL

W. P. Colburn, City Superintendent, Wishes Reports From Parents

A comparison of the census reports with our school registers shows us that practically every child in the city of Rhinelander, between the ages of seven and fourteen, is enrolled in some school in the city. We find, however, that there are many children fourteen and fifteen years old, who are not attending any school. Those children have a right to attend school, also, unless they are regularly employed. Will not the parents of fourteen and fifteen year old children who are not in school, please inform the city superintendent as to why such children are not in school, and what occupation they are following? Such action on their part will make unnecessary a visit by the trustee officer.

The compulsory education law provides that for every child living within two miles of a school who is between the ages of seven and fourteen, must attend school for the entire school year, and that every child fourteen of fifteen years old must attend also, if not regularly employed. Such children, unless employed on a farm or in doing house work, should have permits granted by the county judge on application signed by the city superintendent. Compliance with these requirements is very simple and may save further difficulty. It is not the intention of the authorities to insist on anything that will cause embarrassment or loss to any family in the city. The city superintendent will be glad to hear from these pupils who are not in school either by mail or telephone.

BASKET BALL TEAM

The basket ball team of the High school is practicing every day under the efficient coaching of Herbert Frogner, and Arthur Swedberg who are home from college for the vacation. The boys certainly appreciate the interest and efforts of these young men.

It has been pleasant during the last two weeks to meet so many former members of the high school who are now away at college, university or normal schools. The superintendent has received reports from several of these schools concerning the work of our graduates, and it is a pleasure to state that in every case the records these young people are making are good ones. This is a source of great gratification to all members of the community who are rejoicing in the success of the young people.

SEASONABLE COLD WEATHER

Those who are awake to the benefits coming from the deep freezing of the crops of the coming year will be pleased that this year we have had plenty of cold before enough snow came to prevent deep freezing. This is very desirable, and the ground will be frozen to a good depth and so heaved and loosened that there will be a good reservoir for water and a deep feeding ground for the plant roots.

When it seems too cold, just think of what it means and realize that it is just cold enough.

H. E. Schellenger is acting as day round house foreman for the Soo line here during the absence of H. L. Riley who is in Minneapolis.

GOLDSTONE MAY OPEN STORE HERE

Harry R. Goldstone has severed his connection with the Jacobson store and with his family will depart this week for Chicago to remain there the rest of the winter.

It is Mr. Goldstone's present intention to return to Rhinelander in the spring and engage in the dry goods business. He believes that he can interest outside capital in a large new store here and if he fails in this may establish a mercantile business on a smaller scale.

Mr. Goldstone has made many friends in this city during the time he has been at the Jacobson store and the news that he may locate in the business field here is generally pleasing.

ENGINEER DIES WITH DIPHTHERIA

The first death to occur in the city isolation hospital in the sixth ward was that of Albert Buettner, who died Christmas morning, following a week's illness with diphtheria.

Mr. Buettner was thirty-six years of age and for several years past had been employed as engineer at the sawmill of the Stevens Lumber company. He was a good tradesman and a faithful employee, and his death has caused sorrow among a retinue of friends. His home was in Campbellsport, Wis., where his relatives reside and the body was shipped to that city Saturday night for interment.

Diphtheria and small-pox are said to prevail to an alarming extent in this part of the state but no epidemic of either disease is feared in this city.

REHIRE JUDAY AT INCREASE IN PAY

At a meeting of the Oneida County Training School Board Wednesday, W. D. Juday, county agricultural representative, was reengaged for another year at a salary of $1500, an increase of $300 over his salary of last year. Of this amount the county pays $500 and the state $900.

Mr. Juday began his services in Oneida county in January 1914, succeeding E. L. Luther. During his first year's work he has given such excellent satisfaction that the board felt justified in rehiring him at more pay.

Harold Crosby while in the woods near Eland Junction recently had the misfortune to freeze his ears quite severely. He was prompt in getting medical aid and while a bandage about the ears causes Harold to be a little "ard of earin" he will no doubt recover from the accident without any serious effects.

EVENTS OF WEEK IN OTHER TOWNS

Items Of More Or Less Importance Boiled Down From Neighboring Exchanges

M. A. Fitzsimmons, who while cashier of the bank of Ironwood was convicted of embezzling $210,000, has been granted a new trial. Sanborn, Lamoreaux and Pray of Ashland were attorneys for Fitzsimmons and the case was under the direction of Mr. Lamoreaux. When Fitzsimmons was convicted, his attorneys took an appeal to the supreme court of Michigan and that tribunal remanded the case for retrial.

During the present year more than a dozen German farmers, most of them with families, have bought land in this vicinity and definitely located here with the intention of cultivating their purchases. While the majority have come from Minnesota points, where they occupied rented land at almost as much per acre as they paid for the title to their tracts here, a few came from Milwaukee, Oshkosh and other points in the state.

The skeleton of a man thought to be that of William McKay, a resident of Flat Rock, who mysteriously disappeared from his home over a year ago, was found in the woods near Pine Ridge. At the time of McKay's disappearance it was thought that he was murdered and a young man named Swanson was arrested on suspicion of having some knowledge of the case but was released for lack of evidence. Sheriff Curran is conducting a thorough investigation of the affair.

The services of a visiting nurse for Antigo are assured for three months, as the result of contributions by various organizations of the city. The nurse will be secured through the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis Association and will probably begin work January 4.

Florence—It is anticipated that all mining operations will be suspended early in the new year at the Hemlock mine at Amasa and the property will be abandoned. The Hemlock is operated by Pickands, Mather & Co., and was their first venture on this range. It has shipped over 200,000,000 tons of ore. The plant and machinery will be removed to the Warner mine, where a considerable body of ore has been developed.

Bayfield—After a very successful season of eight months during which time twenty million feet of lumber was cut, the Wachsath Lumber company's mill has closed its 1914 season. The plant started operations on April 5, last.

STILL THEY COME

C. Eby has sold the Eby and Daniels holdings in section 34-36-10 E, containing seven forties (280) acres from which Eby and Daniels are cutting the saw log timber, pulp wood and cedar this winter. The land was sold to H. B. Easter of Olivia, Minn., who will more, here early in the spring and will make this county his future home. Mr. Easter intends to go into the stock raising business for which the land is well adapted.

Mr. Easter is an architect and builder and will open up an office in that line. His friends to follow his profession together with stock raising.

A WAY OUT

A Resident of Rhinelander Shows the Way

There's one effective way to relieve kidney backache. Inflammation and plasters may relieve. But they seldom reach the cause. Backache is caused to suspect the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills are for disordered kidneys.

Rhinelanders people back them up. Read a case of it.

Mrs. J. Standinger, 727, Arbutus St., Rhinelander, says: "I was bothered by retention of the kidney secretions and once I had to call in a physician. Finally I had the good fortune to learn of Doan's Kidney Pills and they soon gave me relief. After I took a couple of boxes, my kidneys became normal and I had no further need of a kidney medicine until two years ago. Then trouble with my kidneys set in again and they acted too often. I again took Doan's Kidney Pills and they gave me quick relief."

Price 50c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Standinger had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

WINNING IN A RUMBLE
LIFE AND STAYING QUALITY
IS WHAT YOU WANT IN A
TROTTING HORSE AS IN A
CHEW OF TOBACCO!

THE GOOD JUDGE WINS A BET FROM THE POOR JUDGE.

THE lean horse for the long trace—a small chew of "Right-Cut" goes further, lasts longer, gives more real comfort and satisfaction than the big wad of the old kind.

Men are glad to tell each other about "Right-Cut" Pure, sappy tobacco—seasoned and sweetened just enough.

Take a very small chew—less than one-quarter the old size. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just bubble on it until you find the strength chew that suits you. Tuck it away. Then let it rest. See how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes; how it settles without grinding, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is The Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end.

It is a ready chew, but fast and short so that you won't have to grind on it with your teeth. Grinding on ordinary candied tobacco makes you spit too much.

The taste of pure, rich tobacco does not need to be covered by molasses and service. Notice how the salt brings out the rich tobacco taste in "Right-Cut."

One small chew takes the place of two big chews of the old kind.

Try to do better in 1915.

The Christmas spirit is O. K. even if it is more or less expensive.

Rhinelanders merchants report a big holiday trade. Another indication that times are good here.

Let "I am going to patronize Rhinelander merchants only" be one of your New Year resolutions.

Christmas is over and now some folks are counting the stubs in their check books.

The weather man could have made that municipal tree more of a success.

That man is also a booster who by kicking causes an improvement in municipal conditions.

The good news goes forth that Rhinelander saw mills will resume operations shortly after the first of the new year. This means an increase in the ranks of the employed here and a prosperous start for 1915.

Unemployed wanderers who are given lodging in the Stevens Point jail are supplied with breakfast before resuming their rambles in the morning. This little act of charity costs scarcely nothing and is a worthy one for other Wisconsin cities to follow.

We really thought Uncle Joe and his followers had learned new ideas but an investigation of his election shows it is hard to teach an old dog new tricks. Uncle Joe's backers are not the only ones who used repeaters to corrupt the election.

Governor-elect Philipp, who is said to be a plain, ordinary business man and who dislikes pomp and ceremony, will go to Madison to take his oath of office in plain style. Four parlor cars, a buffet car and an observation car, drawn by two locomotives will comprise his special train.

That planned Philippine uprising which United States authorities were so prompt to check may only prove the beginning of more trouble in the Islands. The more we hear of the Philippine problem the more we are inclined to feel that it was an unlucky day for Uncle Sam when Dewey lambasted that Spanish fleet in Manila Bay.

It remains to be seen whether Governor Bleasie is acting wisely in pardoning and paroling all the convicts from the South Carolina penitentiary. By the number of men whom it will be necessary to return to that institution will one be able to judge the wisdom or folly of his move. At any rate it should prove a good test for the "give a man a chance" idea.

EDITORS ONLY HUMAN

Day before yesterday a perfectly nice lady called us up and with tears in her voice reproved us for not mentioning the fact that she had a friend visiting her last week. We told her that she had not let us know anything about it and that therefore we did not know she had a visitor. Then she said: "Well you should have known. I thought you was running a newspaper." Wouldn't that rattle your eardrums? Some people think that an editor ought to be a cross between Argus and Anna Eva Fay. They seem to think that our five senses are augmented by a sixth that lets us know everything that happens, even if we see, hear, feel, taste or smell it not. Dear lady, editors are only human, or at least, almost human. If you have a friend visiting you, if you are going away, or have returned from a visit out of town, if Johnnie falls and breaks his arm, if your husband chops his toe instead of a stick of wood, if anything happens that makes you glad, sad, happy or mad, call us up, tell us about it. That's the way to get it in the paper. —(Exchange.)

PROTEST TO ENGLAND

Within the last six weeks twelve Norwegian and Danish ships laden with meats and animal products valued at $5,350,000, belonging to the Chicago packers and bound for neutral ports have turned their bows toward English ports under persuasion of the big guns of British war ships.

Once there, the cargoes were declared to be "conditional contraband" and confiscated. No offer to pay for the foodstuffs thus far has been made.

Protests have been entered at the State Department and claims for the full amount filed in the English prize court, but so far the packers have received no notification that any date has been set in London for a hearing. The American note on Monday to Great Britain insisting on better treatment of this country's commerce has caused the packers to take hope that their claims will be adjusted satisfactorily. They say they have made out a strong case, and that the terms of the government note care for practically every contention they have made.

The $5,350,000 worth of foodstuffs confiscated consists of boxes of meat, canned meat, lard, lard compounds and casings.

The "loss" is apportioned as follows:

Armour & Co.	$2,200,000
Swift & Co.	1,500,000
Morris & Co.	700,000
Sulzberger & Sons Co.	350,000
Libby, McNeill & Libby	350,000
Cudahy Packing Co.	250,000

A large portion of the confiscated foodstuffs had been on the high seas from one to two weeks prior to the promulgation of the English order on Oct. 29 declaring foodstuffs to be conditional contraband.

In all instances the foodstuffs were in neutral bottoms and bound for neutral ports, the greater part can commerce and insisting upon it being consigned to Copenhagen, Denmark. Part of the packers' products was consigned "to order" and the remainder to agents in neutral ports.

The American note protesting against the British treatment of American commerce and insisting upon an early improvement came as a complete surprise to the British public, as there had been virtually no intimation that any friction had arisen between the two governments.

The placards posted by the evening papers were given over exclusively to the American note, and the papers gave it the largest headlines they have given any news during the last month. Consequently the British people regard this as one of the most important occurrences of the whole war.

Nothing of the kind, since a President Cleveland's Venezuelan message has produced such a sensation. —Chicago Herald.

CANNON'S CORRUPT ELECTION

Uncle Joe Cannon's election is dragged into federal probe "floaters" confessed Cannon voters bought their votes.

The raid of the federal district attorney and grand jury on Terre Haute election funds, which has resulted in 127 indictments and the imprisonment of almost every important officer of this city, including the mayor, the sheriff and the judge of the circuit court, has now extended over to Paris, Ill., and will call in question the election of "Uncle Joe" Cannon, one of the "come-backs" at the November election.

Evidence was given before the federal grand jury that not only did thirty-one "floaters" from Paris come over the state line and vote at the November election, but that 700 of them were brought by some one representing the "stand pat" G. O. P. machine and cast their fraudulent votes for "Uncle Joe."

"I find the Republicans conducted a conspiracy of their own," said Daily, U. S. District Attorney. "The grand jury will meet again Jan. 4, when we shall question the witnesses who know all about it."

Thirty or forty men who had part in the plot have confessed and are at liberty on their own recognizance. It is confidently expected several of the Republican candidates at the November election will be indicted and perhaps some of the "higher ups" who handled the money—perhaps even those who provided it.

The corruption extended to the congressional election and the grand jury declared in its finding that an attempt was made to have declared elected a candidate for congress who was not elected. The man finally declared elected is Congressman Ralph Moss.

The bringing of Cannon's election into the case was purely an accident. It was while taking the evidence of several "floaters" who confessed they had been hired to come into Indiana

A TIMELY PROTEST AND WARNING

President Wilson's note of protest and warning to the British government with respect to the treatment of American commerce by the British naval forces is both well-timed and well-founded.

It is well-founded because American industries and trade have suffered from the acts of British naval commanders and from the apparent inability of the British government definitely to make up its own mind about questions of "contraband" and the rights of neutral commerce at sea in the time of war.

It is well-timed because not made in haste, but with all deliberation. It recognizes the fact that the war was not expected by the British government, and that it could not reasonably be expected to deal in short order and satisfactorily with all details of a wholly unprecedented international situation. —Chicago Record Herald.

FOR GOVERNMENT PENSIONS

Last week when all mankind was filled with the joyful Christmas spirit twenty old and faithful employees of the Chicago postoffice were discharged from service in compliance with Postmaster General Burleson's sixty year age limit rule. Here is a pitiful, if not a shameful condition. These men, who have given the best of their lives to the government at just a living wage, are removed from their positions with no provisions for their future. With the majority of them it has been impossible to pay by a saving from their meager compensation and what will become of them is a problem.

Here is a substantial argument in favor of pensions for government employees. Men who have become old in the employ of the government should not be heartlessly discharged without some provision having been made for their declining years.

Many of the large corporations, including the railroads and U. S. steel company pay pensions to old employees.

Next Monday, January 4, Oneida county's recently elected official family will take their oaths of office. With the exception of Charles Crofoot, sheriff, and John J. Verage, county clerk, all the officers were re-elected to their present places. Mr. Crofoot cannot rightfully be termed a new official, having for several years past been connected with the sheriff's office. Mr. Verage has also previously served two terms as register of deeds. The New North wishes each and every officer success.

TEACHERS SHALL RECEIVE WAGES

Supt. F. A. Lowell,
Rhinelander, Wis.

Dear Mr. Lowell:

I have your letter of Dec. 21. The law gives the school board power to grant the teachers time to attend an institute, or teachers' meeting, or school board conventions, without loss of pay. See section 459.

Mr. Harper reported that you had one of the best conventions that he ever attended. He was delighted with the way the business was run, the attitude of the teachers and the school board members, and especially commented on the admirable way in which you handled the convention.

Wishing you a Happy New Year, I remain

Yours cordially,
O. P. CARY,
State Superintendent.

The above letter from O. P. Cary, state superintendent, is published as a matter of information to show school board members that teachers who attend institutes and conventions are to draw their pay if permission is given by the boards to attend such meetings.

SASNAUSKI HELD WITHOUT BONDS

At the preliminary hearing of Joseph Sasnauski, charged with the murder of Frank Morrell, the defendant was bound over to circuit court for trial and was committed to the county jail without bail. Attorney Okonski of Wausau represented Sasnauski at the examination which was completed in municipal court Thursday afternoon.

Upon pleading guilty to the charge of stealing an overcoat from the store of Gary & Danielson, Henry Connors and Frank Shay, young men, were fined $25 and costs each or four months in the county jail. They went to jail.

As a result of a fight at Monico Christmas morning, John Alfbee was arrested charged with assault with intent to kill. Ferdinand Bauman made the complaint. In municipal court Judge Smith found the evidence insufficient to hold the man on the first charge and this was bodily harm. He was sent to jail for three months.

Henry Wilson, who is accused of stealing a gold watch from John Erickson, was bound over to circuit court under bonds of $1000. The theft is alleged to have been committed on October 30.

A Stopped Clock is worse Than No Clock at All

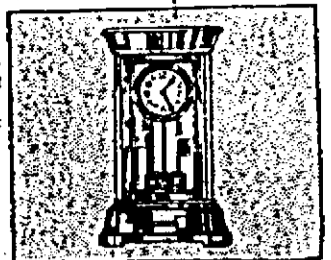

TRAINS are missed—appointments are not kept on time—dinners are late—dispositions are spoiled—and a general household rumpus occurs when a clock stops.

And ordinary clocks will stop if they're not wound—and winding a clock is dependent upon human memory—and there you are.

Your clocks often stop, and so do everybody's—and so do mine—that is, mine did until I bought a—

Tiffany
Never-Wind Clock

The "Never Wind" is an electric clock that keeps time all the time. It never needs winding, and, fairly treated, never gets out of order—will last a lifetime and requires little or no attention except when you change the battery. This any child can do in a moment, and a new battery costs but a few cents.

It's a new invention, and it's wonderful—but it isn't expensive—a "Never-Wind" costs no more than any other good clock—and you should have at least one in your home. Be sure to see the "Never Wind" in your jeweler's window.

POPULAR YOUNG PEOPLE MARRY

A pretty home wedding was solemnized at eight o'clock Saturday evening at the residence of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Reed, at 215 E. King street, when Miss Hattie Corinne Johnson became the bride of Mr. Rex Richard Reed. In the presence of relatives and intimate friends of the young couple Rev. Campbell Gray, rector at St. Augustine's church, performed the ceremony, the ring service being used. Miss Hazel Scott was bridesmaid and Mr. Howard Reed Jr. attended his brother. Miss Mabel Rheume played the wedding march.

The bride was attired in white crepe de chine and carried white roses. Miss Scott wore pink and carried pink roses.

Following the ceremony luncheon was served, covers being laid for twenty-two. The house decorations were carnations, smilax and evergreens.

Mr. and Mrs. Reed have spent practically all their lives in this city. The bride is a daughter of Mrs. Anna Anderson, formerly of this city, now living in the west. She is a graduate of the high school, attended Oshkosh Normal and was later numbered among the efficient and popular teachers of Oneida county. She is a pleasing young lady and possesses all the loving traits essential to a kind and dutiful helpmate.

Mr. Reed is one of Rhinelander's promising young men, clean cut and respected by a wide circle of friends. He is a high school graduate and studied pharmacy at Marquette University. Since leaving Marquette he has held a position as prescription clerk at the Kretlow drug store.

Mr. and Mrs. Reed are for the present making their home with his parents and may later commence housekeeping. To the happy young couple congratulations are extended.

Christmas Business At Post-office Largest In History Of Office

Postmaster Matt Stapleton on Monday issued the following statement pertaining to the Christmas business at the Rhinelander Postoffice:

Post-office records were smashed in the Christmas delivery. While all records were broken for the number of letters and cards and packages received at this office, allow me to state, to the credit of our own business men, that we sent out almost as many packages as we received, which speaks well for the local prices and also shows that our people have as much money to buy presents for their friends in other cities as people of other cities.

Many perishable articles such as butter, eggs, chickens, turkeys and even dressed porkers were sent through the office, and any number of Christmas trees were shipped to the different southern states.

Seven men and a team were engaged in delivering packages, and four men on the letters and small packages, but even then it was necessary to make one delivery Christmas and it continued during part of the afternoon. And now that the rush is over I certainly feel grateful to those that helped us out, and have much more confidence in the strength of my force.

In conclusion I would like to have all the business men, the whole public in fact, insist on their parcels coming by parcel post, and thus we will build up a large office force and get a new building quicker, and create many new rural routes. To prove to the public that I have been working over time to give better service, the government informed the December 21st, that my salary had been increased $100 per year from July 1st, 1914, making my salary $2600 for this year. Matt Stapleton, Postmaster.

ST. AUGUSTINE'S

Friday, Jan. 1, is New Year's Day, the feast of the Circumcision of our Lord and the octave of Christmas Day. There will be a celebration of the holy eucharist at 7:30 a. m. Those who have not yet made their Christmas communion, should make it at this time.

Sunday Jan. 3, the services will be at 7:30 a. m., 11 a. m. and 4 p. m. Rev. Campbell Gray.

To the Reverend Clergy and the Faith in Christ:

Greetings.—The feast of the Circumcision of Christ, the octave of Christmas, New Year's Day, falls this year on Friday, and mindful of the family festivities which have grown up about it, I, using the traditional authority of the office of Bishop, grant a formal dispensation from the abstinence which the church's law requires on Friday, Jan. 1st.

Hoping that we may all remember the poor of our neighborhoods and in war-stricken Europe, and that our homes be full and plentiful with all manner of store in joy and gladness. Faithfully yours in our Lord, (Signed) Reginald H. Weller, Bishop of Fond du Lac, Christmas Eve, 1914.

MAKING RESERVES AVAILABLE

ONE of the few disadvantages of the old National Bank System was the concentration of reserves in the larger cities.

Uncle Sam, whose representatives on the National Reserve Board have absolute control over the entire Federal Banking System, now keeps the reserves of the various districts concentrated at home where they are available when needed.

Our banking and currency systems are now responsive to the fluctuating requirements of the community and to the general needs of the people.

Open Air Schools

The greatest benefit of the "open air school" has been the object lesson it has furnished that all schools could and should be "fresh air schools."

When we learn that physically handicapped children, with additional lunches and out-of-door school rooms compete in scholarship with physically robust children, it ought to open our eyes to the possibilities ahead of normal children with equal opportunities.

When it was learned that sunshine, fresh air, good food and rest cured consumption, somebody conceived the idea that these same agencies ought to be good for the health of people who had not yet contracted the disease. Everybody realized and acted upon that logic consumption would be rarer than it is.

Training defectives has elsewhere taught us principles of training normal children. Madam Montessori, you will recall, developed her system amongst mentally deficient children. When, by her methods these children equalled children who had started mentally normal, she argued logically that the same methods ought to make sound minded children jump through their schooling.

The expression "a sound mind in a sound body" has been repeated so often that it has "lost its punch."

Like an oath which has become a habit. But shouldn't schools build up children physically, or if not that, should they not at least refrain from breaking them down?

When we all appreciate and act on the fact that it is more intelligent to prevent children from breaking down in school than it is to partially cure them after they have been broken, another great gain will have been made. For one thing it is exceedingly doubtful if anybody whose health has been seriously damaged is ever completely repaired.

Our children can be given most of the advantages of an out-of-door school room by putting more clothes upon them and opening wide a few more windows.

Cold air is responsible for the energy and drugedness of northern people. Why, then, should we dissipate that advantage by raising the temperature of our homes, offices and schools to the heat and dryness of the Sahara desert?

Pleasure Denied Vicious Minds.

Little vicious minds abound with anger and revenge, and are incapable of feeling the pleasure of forgiving their enemies.

RING OUT, YE BELLS!

In every country where man keeps New Year's the pealing of the bells is the first herald of dawn of the holiday. For fifteen centuries, ever since Bishop Paulinus introduced bells in the ceremonies of the Christian church, the custom has been followed. It grew out of the ancient habit of expressing malignant spirits with chimes so that the journey of the dead into the great beyond should be undisturbed.

The great bell of Moscow, the Liberty bell, John Bunyan's bell, the chimes of Old Christ church in Philadelphia, are some of the noted relics whose brazen throats have told the coming of a new year. Modern skill has made the chimes a part of a complicated machine, operated by electricity and played by the ringer much as a pianist sits before his instrument, but whether operated by old or modern methods the New Year's peals hold their place undisturbed in the affections of man.

As We Approach a Year.

We approach a new and untold year. As we cross its threshold to meet new and enlarged opportunities let it be with a steadfast purpose to increase our fund of knowledge, our strength of character, our usefulness and helpfulness as never before, realizing that, at best, "the time is short." May the thoughts we have been considering so take possession of us, the purposes born of them so govern that our lives will be sweeter, happier, more practically and truly successful during such time as remains to us here, and better fitted for the dawn of that new time which shall be reckoned not by years and have no end.

Much Kissing on New Year's

It was the custom on New Year's day for all the citizens, after they had called upon each other during the day, to visit the governor in the evening, men and women together, where it was the custom of the worthy Peter to bestow upon each of the wives and maidens a hearty smack, thus setting a fashion that was no doubt carefully followed by the rest of the men. Rejoicings Upon the New Year's Coming of Age

By CHARLES LAMB

THE Old Year being dead and the New Year coming of age, which he does by calendar law as soon as the breath is out of the old gentleman's body, nothing would serve the young spark but he must give a dinner upon the occasion, to which all the Days in the year were invited. The Festivals, whom he deputed as his stewards, were nightly taken with the notion. They had been engaged time out of mind, they said, in providing mirth and good cheer for mortals below, and it was time they should have a taste of their own bounty.

It was stiffly debated among them whether the Facts should be admitted. Some said the appearance of such lean, starved guests, with their mortified faces, would pervert the ends of the meeting. But the objection was overruled by Christmas Day, who had a design upon Ash Wednesday (as you shall hear) and a mighty desire to see how the old Domine would behave himself in his cups. Only the Vigils were requested to come with their lanterns to light the gentlefolk home at night.

All the Days came. Covers were provided for 365 guests at the principal table, with an occasional knife and fork at the sideboard for the Twenty-ninth of February.

Cards of invitation had been issued. The carriers were the Hours, twelve—little merry, whirling foot pages that went all round and found out the persons invited, with the exception of Easter Day, Shrove Tuesday and a few such movables, who had lately shifted their quarters.

Well, they are all met at last, foul Days, fine Days, all sorts of Days, and a rare din they made of it. There was nothing but "Hail, fellow Day, well met!" Only Lady Day seemed a little scornful. Yet some said Twelfth Day cut her out, for she came all royal and glittering and Epiphenous. The rest came in green, some in white, but old Lent and his family were not yet out of mourning. Rainy Days came in dripping and Sunshine Days laughing. Wedding Day was there in marriage finery. Pay Day came late, and Doomsday sent word he might be expected.

April Fool took upon himself to marshal the guests and May Day, with that sweetness peculiar to her, proposed the health of the host. This being done, the lordly New Year, from the upper end of the table, returned thanks. Ash Wednesday, being now called upon for a song, struck up a carol which Christmas Day had taught him. Shrove-tide, Lord Mayor's Day and April Fool next joined in a glee, in which all the Days chimed in.

All this while Valentine's Day kept courting pretty May, who sat next to him, slipping amorous billets doux under the table till the Doz Days began to be jealous and to bark and raze exceedingly.

At last the Days called for their cloaks and greatcoats and took their leave. Shortest Day went off in a deep black fog that wrapped the little gentleman all round. Two Vigils—so watchmen are called in Heaven—saw Christmas Day safely home; they had been used to the business before. Another Vigil—a stout, sturdy patrol, called the Eve of St. Christopher—seeing Ash Wednesday in a condition little better than he should be, even whipped him over his shoulders, pickaback fashion, and he went floating home singing.

On the bar's back do I sit, and a number of old snatches besides. Longest Day set off westward in beautiful crimson and gold; the rest, some in one fashion, some in another. But Valentine and pretty May took their departure together in one of the prettiest silvery twilights a Lover's Day could wish to set in.

WHAT SHALL BE DONE TO INSURE A HAPPY NEW YEAR?

The best resolve to make at this season is to resolve to make others happy. This not only brings happiness to others, but to ourselves. It does not spring from the selfish desire to please ourselves by pleasing others, but from that proper self love which prompts us to do for others what we would have them do for us. In giving pleasure we receive pleasure, and thus the New Year is made brighter and happier for all.

I wish to thank the people of Rhinelander for the liberal patronage which they have given me during the past year.

TO ONE AND ALL I WISH A

NICHOLS HARDWARE COMPANY

FOUND HER HIMSELF

By MARTHA M'GULLOCH-WIL-LIAMS.

(Copyright, 1914, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Granny, the names are so hard, can't I just say, 'They went on and begat one another to the end of the chapter?'" Phil asked earnestly, his brow puckered deeply, his fingers moist.

He loved granny dearly—there were parts of the Bible he loved likewise to read to her. "But the begats! There his halting tongue always got him in trouble.

Commonly Phil was as docile as today he was restive. What boy of twelve wouldn't have been restive with all the school streaming past to the big lot, where the home nine of big boys was to play off a match with a nine from town?

So when granny shook her head, saying almost sternly, "Read on!" he tried to be obedient, but broke down in spite of his twelve years. Tears blinded him, his choking throat refused utterance. He dropped the Testament and dug fists into his blinking eyes. Granny stared at him unseeing, but her ears told her his distress. She was about to speak when Lisa and Nancy burst in, crying breathlessly, "Oh, goodie! Phil hasn't gone. Mother says if he'll take us we can go to the game."

The Acton twins were just his age, and lived near enough to be playfellows.

"Phil's cryin'! What for?" Lisa exclaimed.

Granny cleared her throat. "I suppose it is because he hates reading to a poor old blind woman," she said rebukingly. "I'll pray the good Lord not to remember and visit it on him."

"I—I—you know—I—" Phil stammered with an appealing look at Lisa. "She laughed outright—he fled precipitately—not toward the lot, but his haven of refuge, the hay mow."

Nancy found him there, and coaxed him to come forth. She had made it right with granny—would stay herself and read to her. Phil and Lisa might be in time if they only hurried. He could not look at her; his heart was too full—nor see her, his eyes were too dim. But in his mind she shaped herself anew as the most comforting and beautiful creature ever made.

Time's whirling took Phil far from the home of his boyhood. At seven and twenty he was as handsome and promising a young lawyer as the town of Exmouth could boast. His uncle, the judge, had taken him there after granny died, adopted him, sent him through college, and taken him into partnership in reward for winning first honors at the law school.

"Just one thing more, son," he had said when Phil first sat down opposite him in the private office. "Get married. Quick. I want to play with your children a good while before I die."

From the judge this was astounding. He had been held almost a child-hater. Those so holding did not know the truth—that he had buried his heart in the grave of another man's wife. She had left behind a daughter almost her image. What so natural as that the judge should scheme hopefully to make her the mate of his adopted son? Craftily, of course. He was too wise for open speech in the matter. Phil would, he knew, feel bound to follow his wishes. His boy must be happy in his own way. Besides, Evelyn was so charming.

Notwithstanding Phil went scathelless; played best man when Evelyn married, and even forbore to kiss the bride.

That night he said to the judge, whose disappointment he had somehow sensed: "Please, sir, forgive me. But, you see, Evelyn was a dead ringer for my first sweetheart. Let me tell you the story, then you'll understand how I am immune to the Evelyn type."

The judge laughed uproariously over the telling. It ran through all the tauntings, teasings and small humiliations Phil had had to endure at that Lisa's hands.

"Why don't you take me out to the old place? I'd love to see where you played as a little boy," said the judge.

Thus it fell out that a month later Judge Gregory and his nephew knocked at the Acton door. Mrs. Acton opened it, and looked at them questioningly, but before they could speak a tall, slender young woman with blue eyes and an infantine smile precipitated herself upon them crying, "Phil! I'd know you in the middle of Africa. Come right in. I want to show you my baby."

"I call that rubbing it in," Phil said smiling. "How do you know I have not come back to marry you?" Lisa shook her fist at him, saying, with a grimace: "Oh, I outgrew you ten years back at least—but I know just the young person for you."

Phil did not answer. He was staring hard at a vision. Just within the living room door was a woman, neither tall nor short, with clear, pale skin and lustrous green-gray eyes, overhung by smooth masses of shining chestnut hair. Her face had a fresh look—as of one whom time had passed by.

He went toward her with outstretched hands, breathing rather than saying, "Nancy!"

She put her hands in his clasp. They were vitally thrilling. Holding them tight, he turned to Lisa, saying: "Thank you, but I've found the young person for myself."

CURIOSITY AND PETER

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS.

(Copyright, 1914, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Peter had always been inquisitive. Even as a child his curiosity had been a marked characteristic and had often been the bane of his mother's existence.

Edna Glover, who lives in the same street with Peter, could write love stories, but she could not use a typewriter. It was through her attempts to master her new machine that Peter came to realize that he was entirely lacking in artistic sense.

He was going to business as usual on a bright October morning when a bit of paper caught his eye. With his habitual interest in things that did not in the least concern him he picked the crumpled paper up on the end of his walking stick. It was a sheet of copy paper which had been used by a person evidently learning to use a typewriter.

"I do wish," he read, "that the young man in the gray suit would select a new tie and have his clothes pressed more often. He wouldn't be at all bad looking if he possessed an atom of taste in his dress—but alas! he wears a green and brown tie, a soft blue hat and red socks. He would look stunning in brown, with a small dull gold tie." Peter laughed aloud and fell to wondering who had watched him passing and with an eye so critical.

Peter fell to wondering whether the name, Edna Glover, so often repeated, was the typist's name or merely a fictitious one. In the evening before he left the office Peter had decided to send a card to Edna Glover in the hope that the name was a real one.

The card he sent reached Edna when she was having her early morning cup of tea. Martha, her faithful maid brought it to her.

"I have ordered a brown suit and purchased a dull gold tie. In the course of a day or two you will see me wearing them. Hope they please you. P. D." Edna arched her fine brows in thought, then a smile leapt into her eyes. "Oh," she gasped, "my papers must have blown about and he has picked one up. Isn't that dreadful!"

The typewriting was progressing nicely and Edna could do an entire page without more than a half dozen mistakes before she had the pleasure of seeing, from behind her rose curtained windows, the brown suit. Edna gasped at the wonderful change it made in Peter. He certainly was good to look at and her eyes followed him until he had turned the corner to enter the subway.

Peter was really proud of himself. He wondered why he had never worn brown before and thanked Edna in another card.

"Call me up at 49 Broda," he wrote. "I want to know if I have selected the right color. My name is Dean—Peter Dean."

Edna drew a sharp breath, half of anger and half of excitement when she read that card. She decided first to ignore the request, but during the afternoon her sense of the romantic and perhaps a desire to write a story around Peter prompted her to call up the number.

"This is perfectly scandalous," she told him when his most pleasing voice answered her on the telephone.

"There is no possible scandal in it," Peter's calm voice informed her. "I am a single man without any strings and I take it that you are in a like position. Yes?" His voice had a ring of laughter in it. "You are a frightfully bad typist," he added.

"I have improved wonderfully lately," said Edna, with an echo of his laughter.

"What do you look like?" asked Peter.

After a prolonged conversation Edna hung up the receiver and Peter called up Calvin Astor.

"I say, what do you know about Edna Glover?" he asked the astonished Astor.

"Peach," came back the prompt reply. "Have proposed to her a dozen times and intend to again tonight."

"No you don't," said Peter. "I'll tell you why later."

Disappointing the Glovers, "I want to have a tooth drawn," said the youngster with the pugnacious face, "and I want gas."

"Tut! Tut!" murmured the dentist. "You're not old enough for gas. And I see you're not afraid of a little pain. Be a man!"

"Tien! Tien!" runs a British weekly's version of the story, "but I expect just at the end I'll give a little bit of a squeal."

"Oh, that won't matter," the dentist replied. "I shan't mind."

"No," retorted the boy, "but I shall just you look out of the window."

The dentist turned to look out, and saw a group of grinning lads standing close by his window.

"Well," he asked his youthful patient, "what does that mean?"

"Those are all the kids I've fought and licked," explained the boy, "and they've all followed me here just to hear me holler. Gimme gas!"

HOW HIS SISTER HELPED

By GRACE SCHWESER.

"It's weeks since I have seen you," remarked Mrs. Lee when they met at their club. "Helen, where in the world have you been keeping yourself?"

"In the kitchen mostly," sighed Mrs. Harvey. "My excellent Hilda went home for a month and I couldn't find any one to take her place. In consequence I became intimately acquainted with my cook stove and dish sink during her absence."

"Yes, I met Mr. Harvey downtown not long ago, and he told me about Hilda's being away, but he said his sister was with you and you were getting on famously."

"Tom doesn't know anything about how I got on. If he weren't such a perfect old dear I'd be indignant at his blindness to household matters. He doesn't recognize a domestic tragedy when it stares him right in the face. Just let me tell you about him."

"When Hilda broke the news that she had to go home to see her sick mother I told Tom that I didn't see what in the world I'd do."

"Do!" said Tom. "Why it will be altogether jolly. We'll have a repetition of those good old times we had before we began to keep a maid. Don't you remember what fun we used to have baking griddle cakes for each other? We'll have buckwheats every morning and some more buckwheats and flapjacks in superfluity every night, just as we used to. Tell Hilda she may remain away until summer if she wishes."

"Tom Harvey," I exploded, "do you think that such enormous quantities of buckwheat cakes and flapjacks are a wholesome diet for our four children, or have you perchance forgotten their existence?"

"I don't know," said Tom. "I'll let Hilda decide."

PASS FIFTY YEARS OF WEDDED LIFE

Mr. And Mrs. E. Haas Observe Golden Wedding In St. Maries, Idaho

On December 15, Mr. and Mrs. E. Haas, former well known residents of Rhineland, celebrated their golden wedding in St. Maries, Idaho, where they have made their home for several years past. Of the happy event the St. Maries Gazette contained the following:

"It has been wisely said that men and women, and especially young people, do not know that it takes years to marry completely two hearts, even of the most loving and well-sorted. That marriage is gradual; a happy wedlock a long falling in love. We know that young persons think love belongs only to brown hair and to plump, round, crimson cheeks. So it does for its beginning, but the golden marriage is a part of love which the bridal day knows nothing of.

The celebration of a golden wedding is of peculiar interest, not only to the two immediately concerned, but to the community in which they live. A golden wedding is a unique event, an experience given to but few. It is therefore a source of great satisfaction to be able to record the golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. E. Haas, who have made this city their home for several years, and to congratulate them on having completed a half century of wedded life. In the enjoyment of good health, and surrounded by a large family of sons, daughters and grand children.

The wedding took place at the Catholic church Tuesday, Dec. 15, at 9 o'clock, in the presence of a large number of their immediate family and neighbors. Father Vollebregt officiating at the ceremony.

After the services a sumptuous banquet was served at the family home, and in the evening a reception was held in honor of the bride and groom. The sons, daughters and other relatives gathered round the festive board were: Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Lander, Mr. and Mrs. J. Sheffer and children; Mrs. A. Easton, of Rhineland, Wis.; Mrs. Helen Johnson and children; Mrs. C. Luce, Mr. and Mrs. F. Haas, Mr. F. Haas, Myron Ford, Mukitico, Wash.; Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Cherry and John Lander, of Three Lakes, Wash.

Besides bouquets of flowers, fragrant and beautiful, Mr. and Mrs. Haas were the recipients of numerous handsome presents, among which were the following: A gold headed cane and Grand Army pin, gold watch and brooch, set of silver spoons gold lined, three piece silver tea set, gold lined, consisting of sugar bowl, creamer and sugar spoon.

Mr. Haas is a veteran of the civil war and, considering his advanced age, 77 years, carries himself well. Mrs. Haas in her 69th year is as active as some twenty years her junior. In the evening of love may they slope gradually to the summit of life their days tinged with its glad remembrances and its rainbow side, turned towards heaven as well as earth.

NEW YEAR GREETINGS TO ALL

May Little New Year 1915 bring to us all continued happiness and prosperity.

FLASHES FROM THE HEADLIGHT

The supply of food and game fish in the lakes and streams of Wisconsin along the Chicago and Northwestern Ry. has not only been maintained but vastly increased.

To give an idea of the great extent to which the Wisconsin waters are stocked each season, in the waters of the three counties of Langlade, Oneida and Vilas, which are permeated by the radiating lines of the Chicago and Northwestern Ry., some 10,000,000 fry of game varieties were a portion of Langlade county. Mr. Gibson, a former sheriff of Langlade county, is a former sheriff of Langlade county and has a number of steel friends in Rhineland. He begins his duties January 1.

Wisconsin now maintains nine fully equipped and modern fish-hatching stations. The total output of fry from the nine state hatcheries in 1913 was 128,079,925, all of which were planted in Wisconsin waters.

This territory is fast becoming recognized as one of the greatest fishing regions in the world.

Senator Stephenson is said to have been the originator of the cedar rail way tie now so commonly used for that purpose. This fact came to the surface the other day when a representative of the Marquette-Eagle Star interviewed Mr. Stephenson. Mr. Stephenson said:

"Yes, I believe I was the first to ever suggest the use of cedar for railroad tie purposes. Before that, oak, where it could be secured, hemlock and other timber was used for that purpose. It was while with the Peshigo company in the early seventies that in the shipyard half way to the harbor I noticed that the cedar which was lying around in the yard showed little signs of decay, while other timber went to pieces comparatively easy. It then occurred to me that it was just the thing for ties.

"While on a trip to Chicago I made known my ideas to H. H. Porter, a director of the Chicago & Northwestern, and later while in New York I breached the same thing to William B. Ogden, another of the Northwestern directors. Neither could see it as I did. They thought cedar was too soft to bear the heavy rail traffic. But I persisted in advocating the plan which was finally taken up by Mr. Baldwin, superintendent of the Northwestern on the branch running from Escanaba to Negaunee. He used cedar for ties and from that beginning it grew into universal use and became the standard tie for railroad building."

The Soo Railway Company will spend from $20,000 to $25,000 in repairs on its Ashland ore dock this winter according to present estimates. A crew of about 40 men will be employed all winter on the job. A year ago the preliminary arrangements were made to build a million dollar steel and concrete ore dock just west of the present ore dock, and as soon as business conditions warrant it, this dock will be in probably during the winter of 1915-16. MORE MONEY TO BRING SETTLERS

Madison, Dec. 26.—The state board of immigration, which has been working under a $10,000 appropriation, will ask for $25,000 from the next legislature, basing its request upon the results attained in the last two years. Over 5 per cent of inquiries from outsiders represent purchases. Of 3,856 inquiries to whom follow-up letters and literature were sent, 190 have bought land, 77 have chosen counties for further investigation in the spring, 28 have visited the state and have not found just what they wanted, and many hundreds are still actively interested. The board is now following 10,800 persons in many states. It does not place inquiries into touch with land agents. Many in other states who visited the Wisconsin board's booth at eleven state and sectional fairs in the middle west last summer are now writing for further information on Wisconsin lands.
